PLACES TO VISIT

Rohtas Fort

Rohtas was concluded as part of the Magadha empire from the 6th century to the 5th century. In 1972, the Rohtas became an independent place and become part of the shahbad district. The places to visit Rohtas are rohtasgarh fort, tarachandi, and many more. The arts made in the Mughal times, religion, as well as temples, are the tourist attractions in Rohtas. October to May is the most favourable time to visit Rohtas. As they are celebrating various festivals like Dussehra, Diwali, and the chhath puja same as the Bihar people celebrate. The decorations and the eagerness of the people became the tourist attractions in Rohtas. One of the most famous kaimur sanctuaries is also situated here. You can reach this place either by road or rail as you feel better. The arts made on the walls are so wonderful and the lighting arranged to make the temples and the fort much attractive than before.

Sher Shah Suri Tomb

This tomb is situated in the middle of a huge pond spread over an area of 22 acres, whose length (east to west) is 1130 feet and width (north to south) is 865 feet. To reach the tomb, one has to pass through the small domed tomb of Sher Shah's concubine located to the north of the pond. The turrets built on all three storeys with grandeur add to its grandeur and present the best specimen of Pathan architecture. For this reason, Kanindham has considered it even better than the Taj Mahal.
